

I believe that the actions the FCC is considering is anti-competitive. Satellite radio provides a valuable service and should be allowed to enhance its product offerings. The current products offered by local radio and TV services are only adequate in most respects. I use both products but in my car I prefer the satellite radio system